

THE PASTOR'S MESSAGE

Dear Church Family,

Good news! Someone has finally found a solution to all the debacles at Boeing, the major airline manufacturer. The head of Dubai airlines, Emirates, thinks he has found a solution: Boeing needs a strong CEO to end crisis.

At the risk of being tacky, my response is, "Thanks for the suggestion, Captain Obvious." The real question is, "With countless lives at stake, all the federal contracts, and a salary that would choke a horse, why has Boeing not already had a series of outstanding leaders?"

For any organization to survive and thrive, care must be taken to employ capable, honorable leadership. The CEO of Emirates continued his advice by suggesting they hire a CEO who "wants to do the right thing." Again, obvious.

Take care in the selection of all leaders, whether the CEO at Boeing or the leader of a Sunday School department. I learned a long time ago that no organization will ever rise above its leaders.
